Understanding Adopted Teens*

Technology and social media are transforming the entire adoption process and the internet makes connecting with birth families easier than ever before.

Maintaining connections is vital in the daily life of an adoptee, but how do parents and professionals assist an adoptee in navigating these birth family relationships and encourage connections in a healthy way?

Debbie Riley facilitates this training which will help parents and professionals navigate relationships between birth and adoptive families in the age of social media.

Join us in discussing how to talk with adoptees about birth family history, learning to address difficult information, and honoring birth parents in both open and closed adoptions.
